The IV Nordic Symposium on Rock Mechanics and Rock Engineering

The Icelandic Geotechnical Society and the Icelandic Tunnelling Society are pleased to welcome you to the Nordic Rock Meeting

Reykjavik, Iceland

24 - 26th of May 2023

The conference will be held in Grand Hotel Reykjavik, close to the city center

The symposium

The Nordic Rock Meeting was established by the Norwegian Rock Mechanic Group and the first meeting was held in Norway 2010, followed by meetings in Sweden and Finland and the next meeting, the 4th, is planned in Reykjavik Iceland in 2023.

This symposium gathers Nordic rock mechanics and engineering geology experts to discuss the current state of research, infrastructure, rock caverns, tunneling, mining, use of underground space for energy recovery and storage, and case histories. Use of underground space for various purposes is a natural choice in Nordic countries and it has made the understanding of rock mechanics and rock engineering vital.

Be welcome and meet your colleagues at the Nordic Rock Meeting.

Why Reykjavík

The Icelandic Geotechnical Society, IGS has hosted the Nordic Geotechnical Conference in 2016, the European Geotechnical Conference in 2019 and it is with great pleasure that we in cooperation with the Icelandic Tunnelling Society welcome the Nordic Rock Symposium in 2023.

We offer our guests a venue unlike all others surrounded by inspiring nature. Iceland is one of the most geologically active locations in the world with volcanoes, lava fields, hot spots, earthquake activities, geothermal areas and glacial outburst. This has created both challenging geotechnical environment and magnificent scenery that you cannot find anywhere else in the world.
